The Memoirs of a Man

Not-how did he die?
But-how did he live?
Not-What did he gain?
But-What did he give?
These are the things
To measure the worth
Of a man, as a man.
Regardless of birth.
Not-What was his station?
Not-What was a heart?
And-How did he play
His God-given part?
Was he ever ready
With a word of good cheer,
To bring back a smile,
To brush a tear?
Not-What was his church?
Nor-What was his creed?
But-How he befriended
Those really in need?
Not-What did the sketch
In the newspaper say?
But-How many were sorry
When he passed away

Mr. Hagan, teacher of social sciences, gave a demonstration of the new type of recreation. The class was in vocational guidance with Truman Springs, ninth grade student, as chairman. A mock radio broadcast was given on the subject of Engineering as a Profession; Jack Simpson and Zeylon Holly speaking. A group of talks on the manufacturing profession was presented by other ninth grade pupils and the whole made up a very interesting project showing how regulation may be directed, yet conducted by pupil initiative.

Miss Margaret Bell, who received her bachelor's degree from Lindenwood College last June with Child Psychology as her major subject, spoke on Tendencies in Child Education, discussing many of the new theories and arrangements for adjusting schools to meet the needs of children.

At the business meeting Mrs. Chas. Lowthorp was asked to resume her duties as president for another year and was given a hearty vote of thanks for her capable and loyal service during the past months. Mrs. Owen will be vice-president, Mrs. Brady, secretary, and Mrs. Fred White, treasurer. him—probably the same night. Police finally said the suit furnished to Dr. Condon was "the same kind as the one the Lindbergh child wore."

Although they added it still was uncertain whether the garment the intermediary received was the one the Lindberghs had purchased for their son, an ugly aspect was cast on the case which would not be quickly dispelled.

This theory is that the kidnappers who many officials believe to have been maniacs, killed the baby almost immediately after stealing him from the crib where he had lain ill; stripped off his sleeping suit; east the body into the woods, and then set out to obtain the ransom for the child they knew could never be returned to life.

Dr. Condon and John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, Va., who also figured in the case as an intermediary with the supposed kidnappers, were questioned throughout most of the night by police on the Lindbergh estate, in an attempt to get an official picture of their activities in the flir's behalf.

Dr. Condon returned to his home in New York after Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police head, issued a bulletin dealing largely with the examination of the two men.

"Dr. Condon's entire statement was

King Cotton, Charming Queen Enthroned for Memphis Fete

Cotton's royalty will rule with regal splendor over the annual Cotton Carnival in Memphis, Tenn., May 11, 12 and 13. Here you see the royal pair who will rule over the festival, which is second only to New Orleans' Mardi Gras in popularity and attractions: "King" J. P. Norfick, Memphis cotton broker, and his charming "queen," Miss Katherine Butler. Thousands of persons from all parts of Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas will be their subjects.

Until 3 a. m. he came and went from the garage on his estate where the police investigation has been centered and where new plans for the intensified search are being formulated. The fast moving events of the day included:

President Hoover's order to federal authorities to "make the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never to be forgotten case."

A statement which he read to newspapermen in emphatic tones and later repeated to members of his cabinet.

Disclosure that identification of the Lindbergh nursemaid produced a spool of thread with which she had done some sewing on one of the undershirts found on the body, and when she exhibited a piece of cloth she had cut from the other undershirt.

Search of the Atlantic seaboard from Boston to Cape May by 25 coast guard boats on the lookout for a vessel reported to have been connected with the kidnapping case.

A statement by District Attorney Erwin E. Marshall, who will have jurisdiction because the body was found in his county, that an arrest might be expected, although it might not be for several days and although he said no one was under suspicion at that time.

Investigation in Detroit of a possible connection between the Lindbergh case and the attempted kidnapping there in 1931 of the children of a Detroit business man, who received notes reported to be similar to those the Colonel got.

A statement by Schwarzkopf that no information had come to him linking Gustav B. Means, former department of justice agent, with the kidnapping and death of the child. (Means is under indictment for obtaining more than $100,000 on the statement he could effect the return of the Lindbergh baby.)

A charge by Emerson L. Richards, leader of the republican majority in the state senate, that state police were no better equipped to solve the kidnapping murder case "than the traffic policemen down on the corner." He said he believed it the duty of the senate to make an inquiry and determine whether an investigation were advisable.

Announcement by District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin of the Bronx that "the question of any crime committed in Bronx, county in connection with the payment of money" for the return of the Lindbergh baby "will be disposed of" now that the body has been found. (The $50,000 ransom payment was made in the Bronx.)

Advancement of a theory by John J. Sullivan, head of the New York City detective force, that the kidnapping and killing were the work of a maniac.

A statement by District Attorney Marshall that he was ready to seek murder indictments in connection with the death of the baby, when the evidence warrants, but that there was no justification for such action yet.

Interest also centered in three men known to the underworld, who at one time or another since March 1 figured as intermediaries in the case.

Morris Rosner, who has been frequently at the Lindbergh estate during the long investigation, arrived there with two state troopers late in the afternoon.

No plans for examining him had been announced, but it was said he was to be questioned, as were other intermediaries.

Salvatore Spitalone and Irving Bitz, who early in the case were named by Lindbergh himself to act for him, were also scheduled to appear for questioning.

Farm Boy Beaten Senseless By Trio

Assailants Flee in Auto After Severely Whipping 19-Year-Old Boy

DANBURY, Ct.—(AP)—A 19-year-old farm boy who came across two men and a woman discussing the Lindbergh baby murder was set upon by the trio and beaten until unconsciousness Friday. His assailants fled in an auto, mobile bearing Illinois license plates.

The attack victim, Claude Tucker, approached the trio from a field near his home. When he heard mention of the name "Lindbergh" he moved closer but one of the men spied him and beckoned him to approach. The youth demurred, whereupon the man tried to engage him in conversation by asking how much it would cost to have the Illinois plates exchanged for Connecticut tags.

Tucker volunteered to find out and ran home to tell his mother. She refused to let him go back with a shotgun, as he begged, but said she would telephone police while he went back and kept the three in conversation until help arrived. When the squad of police reached the scene Tucker was lying unconscious in the roadway.

"You can not get eggs without hens," said the speaker stressing the point. "My dad can," piped a small voice from the rear.

"Please explain yourself little boy," said the speaker.

"He keeps ducks" yelled the boyish voice from the rear.

Some of the politicians are coming out for free silver again. But the really wise ones will advocate free beer.

Kiwanis Support All Cotton Week

Resolution Adopted Urging Greater Use of Cotton and Products

Local support of National Cotton Week was enthusiastically given by the Kiwanis club at their Friday night meeting at the New Capitol hotel. This event, which is scheduled for next week, commencing Monday, May 16, was designed to further the use of cotton and cotton products. The Kiwanis club voted a resolution in support of the movement, and agreed to wear cotton suits at the next meeting of the club. The resolution follows:

Since 90 per cent on all cotton produced in America during the last 15 years has been exported; and since it is considered almost impossible for the Southern Cotton Farmer to export for a period of next 15 years 90 per cent of his product at a living wage, or with any degree of profit, it seems essential for the welfare and prosperity of the Southern farmer that America consume a far greater percentage of the cotton grown in the South, it looks as if the leadership in increasing the domestic use of cotton should certainly come from the South. It is further believed that a definite objective toward the increased use of cotton will be more effective, and will be felt over a much broader territory than just a general advocating of this increased use. Therefore, Be It Resolved,

That the increased consumption of cotton be made a major objective of the Kiwanis club of Hope, as well as of the entire group of clubs throughout the South—that it shall be the duty of the public affairs committee of our club, and of each club to increase all members with the greatest value to everyone in the south, of increased domestic cotton consumption; to get the local merchants to carry as extensive stocks as possible, of men's cotton suits, women's cotton dresses, as well as all cotton products; to advertise such cotton products in local newspapers and windows, and otherwise promote the sale of cotton goods in every effective way. And in order to give the people of this section a practical demonstration of Kiwanis leadership in promoting the use of cotton, to start a campaign and to set an example to the rest of the South. Be it further resolved,

That each member of each Kiwanis club in the state appear at the regular meeting during Cotton Week in a sport suit.

Three of the cast of the Shover Street colored school, who staged the song and dance attractions at the Saenger Thursday and Friday nights, provided the entertainment for this week's meeting. The three, all members of the fourth grade, were: Chester Yerger, Jr., Helen McCollum and Cleona Hill. They sang several songs, and gave several clever dances, that were splendidly received by the audience. Naomi Yerger, teacher in the school, as well as instructor of the colored children in this act, played the piano accompaniment.

Miss Fanny Wimberly furnished the piano music for the club meeting, in the absence of Miss Harriet Storey, who is visiting in New Orleans.

The club voted to send a message of condolence to Colonel Charles Lindbergh in his bereavement.

National Tribute To Wonder State

Arkansas Is to Be Featured on Air Over N. B. C. Chain May 16

Nationwide attention will be focused on Arkansas Monday night, May 16, when a radio panorama in music and story of the state's contribution to the historical, cultural and industrial development of America will be broadcast.

The occasion will be the dedication of the "Parade of the States" program of that evening to the "Wonder State" as part of the educational plan of the General Motors Corporation to give the people of the rest of the country a more intimate glimpse of each of the states in turn. The program will be broadcast at 9:30 p. m. EST, over the National Broadcasting Company's chain of some forty stations and will be heard in every section of the country.

Bruce Barton has written a special tribute to Arkansas for the program. It will recall some of the high spots of the state's history and draw attention to her scenery and the importance of her mineral waters and health resorts. Mr. Barton also stresses the variety of Arkansas industries and the number of products which come from her soil.

David Guion's arrangement of "The Arkansas Traveler," written by Sanford C. Faulkner in 1840, will be one of the features of the program as well as several groups of plantation songs. The state song, "Arkansas" and the "Razorback Rouser" Song of the University will also be sung. The Southern emeralds will sing a medley of songs of the cotton land dedicated to National Cotton Week which opens on May 15.

Among those who have co-operated in supplying the material from which the program has been arranged are Dudley V. Haddock of the Arkansas Industries Association, Professor H. D. Tovey, head of the department of music of the University of Arkansas and members of the National Community Service at Sulphur Springs.

Rosston Farmer Is Badly Stung by Bees

T. E. Bailey, well known Rosston farmer, was badly stung by several bees Sunday, while trying to capture a swarm as it was about to leave the hive. He was rushed to the home of his son, Ralph Bailey, of Hope, late Sunday night, when his suffering became acute. Prompt treatment brought about a speedy recovery, however. It was estimated that some twenty or thirty bees stung him, setting up poison in the blood. He is recovering nicely Tuesday, it is reported.
